Subject: Entrepreneurs on the rise in Russia – video and conference

Hello

In light of the recent wave of Russian investment and innovation news following the St. Petersburg International Economic Forum, I thought you might be interested in this insightful video interview on entrepreneurship in Russia with Victor Sedov, the president of the U.S.-Russia Center for Entrepreneurship. Mr. Sedov offers unique insight on how a new generation of homegrown Russian entrepreneurs can help grow and modernize Russia's economy for the greater good. The center is an initiative of the U.S.-Russia Investment Fund and has collaborated with Ernst & Young, Intel, Harvard and MIT, among other organizations.

You might also be interested to know that the center will host its annual conference, “Entrepreneurs as Leaders in Business and Society,” this Thursday, June 23 in Moscow. The event offers a platform for participants to share best practices, network and foster entrepreneurship in Russia, especially among people under 30. Please keep an eye out for news coming out of this conference.

As a communications professional working on behalf of the Russian government, I would be happy to discuss the story of entrepreneurship's rise in Russia with you. I am also happy to put you in contact with Mr. Sedov, who spent several years working in the U.S. before returning to Russia to lead the center. Please let me know.

Thank you,

Anna

Dr. Tomislava Penkova on the ongoing Russian modernization process

Posted: 09 Aug 2011 11:00 AM PDT

In a piece written exclusively for Modern Russia, Dr. Tomislava Penkova, Research Fellow at the Milan-based Institute for International Political Studies (ISPI), analyzes the current Russian modernization process and its links to Moscow's foreign policy. Dr. Penkova, who also lectures at the Catholic University of Milan, examines the following in her piece:

- The role of the West, specifically the European Union and United States, in Russia's modernization;
- How the BRICS, and more specifically China and India, can contribute to Russian modernization efforts;
- How that process will shape Russo-Chinese and Russo-Indian relations.

Grant to fund Krasnoyarsk trips for Western scientists

Posted: 10 Aug 2011 10:33 AM PDT

Dr. Ernst-Detlef Schulze, a German biologist and former director of the Max-Planck-Institute for Biogeochemistry in Jena, was awarded a "mega grant" from the Russian government in May as part of a drive to attract leading foreign scientists to Russia. Here, he tells Modern Russia that the funding project has given an "enormous boost" to innovation research projects in Russia, and explains how he will use his 150 million ruble grant to organize study trips for Western scientists to the Krasnoyarsk region.
